"We believe the growth rates in the high double digits in the background screening industry in India will continue for some time to come. This is a function of both – increasing awareness of the need for this risk mitigation process across all sectors, as well as the large numbers of new employees entering the Services industry. Employee background screening will continue to be a sunrise sector for the next few years, and there will be substantial room for growth not just for us, but other mid-size and large providers as well.

As our clients' needs become more nuanced, we will work on offering more segmented offerings which are sector, organisational hierarchy and geography specific, so we are able to our clients' unique and specific requirements.

With the rapid digitisation sweeping across the country, there will be a need to evolve at a faster pace, and to create solutions which are faster, better, more efficient".
